ADVERTISEMENT TO THE SECOND EDITION.

SINCE the first edition of this Catalogue was published, particulars have been received of nearly one thousand (1,000) graduates. The total number of whose career a more or less detailed account is given in this edition is eighteen hundred and fifty (1850). Two hundred and fifteen (215) are known to be dead. Seventy-nine have died since the first edition was issued. The Secretary will be very grateful for any additional, or if need be, corrected information in regard to the teachers, graduates, or history of the College. From the constantly increasing interest shown by the graduates in the affairs of the Medical Department of the University, it is believed that a revised edition of this Catalogue will soon be asked for. The Committee hope at no very distant day to be able to publish an edition containing the history of nearly every graduate.

PREFACE.

THE Publication Committee, appointed at the Annual Meeting of 1871, in presenting the Catalogue of the Alumni of the Medical Department of the University of the City of New York, offer a few statements which will account for the delay in the issue of the work.

When the organization was formed, in the autumn of 1867, scarcely an effort had been made to secure and preserve records of the Alumni. Their names merely appeared on the books of the Council of the University, while another list had been destroyed by the fire which burned the College building in Fourteenth street. Even in the city and vicinity of New York, where are now known to reside nearly two hundred and fifty of the Alumni, no person could be found who knew the residences of any considerable number.

In the early period of the Association, facts necessarily accumulated slowly. At the date of the Annual Meeting of February, 1870, we had the addresses of but one hundred and thirty (130). Very many of these were obtained through the efforts of H. Mortimer Brush, the first Secretary of the Association. As the existence, aims and objects of the Association became more widely known, information was received from different quarters, enabling your Committee now to offer particulars of nearly eight hundred and fifty (850) of the graduates.

The facts have been obtained from various sources, but mainly by the efforts of your Committee;—and, as the other members of the Committee feel bound to say, chiefly through the earnest labor of Dr. Pardee, the present Secretary of the Association and Chairman of this Committee,—and through an advertisement of the Association, which had a wide circulation in most of the medical journals of this country. To Dr. Alfred L. Carroll, formerly editor of the Medical Gazette, is the Association indebted for the wide circulation accorded to this advertisement. The Faculty of the College also contributed to the result by printing, in the annual announcement of lectures, a notice of the Association, and of its requirements. Valuable information and hearty co-operation have been given by Professor Martyn Paine; Professor William Darling, of the Class of 1842, and by others.

While this Catalogue is incomplete, it will be found to be the most accurate record of the names of the graduates that has ever been published, and will, we trust, serve as a basis for a future edition; for which it is hoped the great mass of our brethren will be more prompt to furnish the necessary facts than they have been to the one we now offer.

HISTORY OF THE MEDICAL DEPARTMENT OF THE
UNIVERSITY OF THE CITY OF NEW YORK, OR, AS OTHERWISE KNOWN,
THE UNIVERSITY MEDICAL COLLEGE.

A LARGE part of this history up to the year 1873 was obtained from the late Professor Paine, who appears to have been particularly instrumental in inaugurating the Medical Department of the University.

In 1838, Dr. Paine, in connection with Charles A. Lee, M.D., Alfred C. Post, M.D., Gunning S. Bedford, M.D., and A. Sidney Doane, M.D., offered themselves to the Council of the University, for the purpose of forming a Medical Department of that institution. They were associated with five other gentlemen who were designated as Assistant Professors, mostly for clinical instruction. To Dr. Paine was assigned the chair of the Theory and Practice of Medicine ; to Dr. Lee that of Materia Medica, Pharmacy, and Medical Jurisprudence ; to Dr. Bedford that of Obstetrics and Diseases of Women and Children ; to Dr. Doane that of Physiology. But they had no knowledge of any chemist of sufficient consideration to occupy the chair of Chemistry. Accordingly Dr. Paine addressed a letter to Professor Silliman, the distinguished chemist of Yale College, for information as to a suitable person, and was informed by the Professor that he knew of no one. Dr. Paine then stated to his colleagues that he had lately read some articles in the American Journal of the Medical Sciences, from the pen of Dr. John W. Draper, Professor of Chemistry in William and Mary College, and that he would be willing, for his own part, to repose his trust in the articles for those high qualifications which he and his colleagues were desirous of obtaining. Therefore it was immediately resolved to recommend Professor Draper to the Council of the University as the Rara Avis in terris, and this led to his connection with both the Academic and Medical Departments.

After the inauguration of the Medical Faculty, circumstances occurred, as published by the Faculty in the Journal of Commerce on the 23d of Jan., which led to the dissolution of their connection with the University on the 11th of Jan., 1839, when the greater number of the Faculty addressed themselves to Columbia College with the object of forming a Medical Department in connection with that institution. The President submitted the application to the Trustees, and soon informed Dr. Paine that a majority of that body was opposed to the institution of a Medical Department. At that time there existed a strenuous opposition on the part of the College of Physicians and Surgeons to the establishment of another medical school in this city, and one of the Professors of that College was a member of the Board of Trustees of Columbia College, while another was a member of the Council of the University. When the application was presented to the Board of Columbia College, an impression was made upon the Trustees that a Medical College was very detrimental to the interests of the academic department of a college, and the example of the University of Pennsylvania was brought to bear successfully upon the Trustees of Columbia College. Professor Paine then addressed letters to the Presidents of Harvard, Yale, and Dartmouth Colleges, to learn the experience of those institutions in relation to their Medical Departments, and he received replies from each of the three Presidents, that the Medical School was a great acquisition to the literary and scientific objects of the several Colleges. These answers were immediately submitted to the Trustees of Columbia College, and soon afterwards Professor Paine was informed by the President that a majority of the Board were in favor of a medical department, but that the minority was too strong to justify the innovation.

It was then determined to apply to the Legislature for an act of incorporation. But great difficulties were anticipated from an opposition by the existing school, which had already succeeded, by various expedients, in suppressing Rutgers Medical College. An appeal was therefore made to the County Medical Society for their recommendation to the Legislature of an act of incorporation, and, after an argument by Professor Paine, a vote was cordially given in favor of a new college. Professor Paine also had interviews with the Trustees of the College of Physicians and Surgeons, for the purpose of obtaining their acquiescence; and under the conviction that a rival school would be useful to that over which they presided, the Trustees cheerfully signed a recommendation to the Legislature for an act of incorporation.

While matters were thus pending, Professor Pattison, of Jefferson Medical College (Philadelphia), and Professor Bedford suggested to Professor Paine the expediency of again approaching the University of New York, with Professor Mott for the chair of Surgery; Professor Draper for that of Chemistry; Professor Pattison, Anatomy; Professor Bedford, Obstetrics and Diseases of Women and Children; Professor Revere, of Jefferson College, Theory and Practice of Medicine; and Professor Paine, the Institutes of Medicine and Materia Medica. Thus arranged they submitted their wishes to the Council of the University, by whom they were at once adopted as the medical department, and for which provision had been made in the Charter.

These six professors then purchased the large granite edifice known as the Stuyvesant Institute, being the finest building in the city, with the exception of the University and the Astor House. This edifice was situated on the westerly side of Broadway, nearly opposite Bond Street. Here the Faculty carried on their instruction till the year 1851, when they sold the property and erected a large and costly edifice on Fourteenth Street, on the east side of the Academy of Music, near the Third Avenue. No arrangements for a Medical College have ever been more ample and commodious. The Faculty held their sessions in this building till the burning of the Academy of Music in the spring of 1866, when the fire laid the medical edifice in ashes, destroying also several valuable collections in anatomy, obstetrics, chemistry, materia medica, botany, mineralogy, etc. The Faculty then took up their quarters in the New York Hospital, which occupied the square between Broadway and Church Street, and between Duane and Worth Streets. They rented one of the large edifices, but were obliged to abandon it in 1869, on account of the sale of the property for commercial purposes.

At the instigation of Professor Henry Draper the late Mr. Cortlandt Palmer, of this city, was induced to erect a building for the College at 426 East Twenty-sixth Street, which he leased to the Faculty for a term of years. This building became entirely too small for the accommodation of the rapidly increasing number of students, and in January, 1875, the Faculty purchased it, with a view to its enlargement, of Mrs. Henry Draper. It was found impracticable to enlarge the building, and accordingly, on March 23, 1875, the land now occupied by the College, 410 East Twenty-sixth Street, was bought by the Faculty for the purpose of erecting a new building. On the 26th of April, 1874, the foundations for the new structure were laid. The Building Committee consisted of Professors William H. Thomson, Charles Inslee Pardee, and Alfred L. Loomis. Through the extraordinary labors of the Committee, and notably by the work of Dr. Pardee, the college was completely built and ready for occupancy at the beginning of the Fall Session of that year.

The following named gentlemen—those whose names are marked with a star being at the time members of the Council—contributed to the funds of the Faculty to aid in the work :

D. WILLIS JAMES, Esq.,	JOHN TAYLOR JOHNSTON, Esq.,*
WM. NIBLO, Esq.,	R. A. WITTHAUS, Esq.,
WM. M. VERMILYE, Esq.,*	WM. E. DODGE, Jr., Esq.,
JOHN C. GREEN, Esq.,*	REV. CHAS. F. DEEMS, D.D.,
REV. WM. M. TAYLOR, D.D.,	DAVID DOWS, Esq.

The interest of their donations furnished several scholarships for the benefit of deserving and indigent students. The college building is now one of the largest and best adapted for its use of any in this country.

The number of graduates up to this time is 3,887, and the class of 1878-79, numbering 204, was the largest ever graduated in the history of the College.

Many changes have taken place in the Faculty since the publication of the last catalogue. Prof. Mott was several years the President of the Faculty, and was succeeded by Prof. John W. Draper. Prof. Paine became the Treasurer of the College in 1841, and conducted all its pecuniary affairs till 1867, a period of twenty-six years. He was succeeded by Professor Alfred C. Post, and he in turn by Professor John C. Draper, who now holds the office. On the 6th of May, 1873, Professor Henry Draper, who for some years had been the executive officer of the College, resigned that position, and was succeeded by Dr. Charles Inslee Pardee, who continues in this responsible position, with the title of Dean of the Faculty, an honor conferred by the Council of the University. On the 24th of November, 1873, Professor Henry Draper resigned the chair of Physiology, and on the 24th of April, 1874, he was succeeded by Dr. J. W. S. Arnold, who now holds this position. On the same date Professor Stephen Smith, formerly of Bellevue Hospital Medical College, was made Professor of Surgical Jurisprudence. Dr. John T. Darby was appointed Professor of Surgical Anatomy on the 29th of May, 1874, and on the 19th of April, 1875, he was appointed Professor of Surgery, to succeed Professor Alfred C. Post, who had resigned, and became Professor Emeritus of Clinical Surgery. On the 1st of December, 1873, Professor John William Draper, who was one of the founders of the medical department, severed his connection with it by resigning the Emeritus Professorship of Chemistry and Physiology. Prof. Draper was the President of the Faculty. The latter vacancy was filled by the election of Professor Post to the Presidency. On the 25th of September, 1874, Professor William A. Hammond, formerly of Bellevue Hospital Medical College, was elected to the chair of Diseases of the Mind and Nervous System.

For the purpose of facilitating the efforts of graduates in medicine who have come to New York to renew their professional studies, on the 27th of April, 1875, the faculty established what is known as the Post Graduate Course. Certificates of proficiency are now granted by the Faculty to graduates in medicine who subsequently attend this course and pass a satisfactory examination. The Post-Graduate Faculty consists of Professors Roosa, Hammond, Stephen Smith, Gouley, Pallen, and Piffard. Professor Charles A. Budd resigned the Professorship of Obstetrics on the 23d of June, 1876, and was elected Professor Emeritus. In October, 1876, a system of daily examinations by the members of the faculty was instituted. These examinations are upon the subjects of the lectures, and are without fee. Dr. J. W. Wright was elected Professor of Obstetrics and Diseases of Women and Children on the 29th of December, 1876. On the same day, Dr. A. E. Macdonald was made Professor of Medical Jurisprudence. The old college building was at the same meeting sold to the Training School for Nurses. This and other changes have made Twenty-Sixth Street more than ever the medical quarter of New York. It is probable that it will continue to enjoy this distinction for years to come.

In 1877 a step forward in medical education was made in the arrangement perfected by the faculty, through which students may pass the examinations in anatomy, physiology, and chemistry at the beginning of their third year of study. On the 14th of May, 1878, Dr. Lewis A. Stimson was appointed Professor of Pathological Anatomy, and a pathological laboratory was established.

In May, 1877, Professor Budd died: in February, 1878, the venerable Martyn Paine passed away; and in June, 1879, Professor Darby also died.

Professor Wright was elected to the chair of Surgery in the same month, and Professor William M. Polk, of Bellevue Hospital Medical College was made Professor of Obstetrics to fill the vacancy caused by the transference of Professor Wright to the Chair of Surgery. Professor Joseph W. Howe resigned the Chair of Clinical Surgery in June, 1879, and Professor James L. Little, of the College of Physicians and Surgeons and the University of Vermont, was appointed to fill his place.

The medical department of the University was not established without an earnest effort, and from the outbreak of the civil war in our country down to 1873, when Dr. Pardee became the Executive Officer, the college passed through a struggle for existence. The Southern students who formed about half of the matriculants, were, of course, cut off with the war, and when it ended there was a new and vigorous rival in the field in the Bellevue Hospital Medical College. Besides, the college building was burned; Professors Van Buren, Metcalfe, Bedford, and Dr. Thomas had resigned; the new college was illy adapted for its purposes. The classes continued to be small, but with the new college and even before it, through the exertions of the faculty and the unconquerable perseverance of the Dean, they began to increase until, in 1879, one of the largest medical classes ever graduated in America (204) received their diplomas from Chancellor Crosby.

The number of graduates to the present time is 3,887.

At the beginning of their enterprise, in 1841, the Faculty having a heavy burden of expenses, and wishing to serve the interests of the public as far as possible, resolved on applying to the Legislature for pecuniary aid. Accordingly they prevailed upon Professor Paine to present himself before the Legislature, in the winter of 1844, with a petition to that effect. The application was very strenuously opposed, especially by influences brought to operate upon the Legislature. It was therefore the tedious labor of two months on the part of Professor Paine to accomplish a successful result, and this the more so as the grant required a vote of two-thirds of all the members elected. Nevertheless the bill was passed on the 6th of May, 1844, granting the sum of $3,000 annually for five years, or longer. By an alteration, however, of the Constitution of the State, affecting all legislative grants, the College enjoyed the gratuity for only three years.

Another incident of far greater interest in the history of the Medical Department of the University is worthy of a more circumstantial record. The Faculty had an earnest desire to obtain from the Legislature an act legalizing the study of anatomy, as it was then a State prison offence to dissect any part of the human body for anatomical purposes, and upon this subject we derive our information from a biographical sketch of Professor Paine, by Samuel W. Francis, M.D., as embraced in his work entitled BIOGRAPHICAL SKETCHES OF DISTINGUISHED LIVING NEW YORK PHYSICIANS, 1866 :

“Up to the year 1854 a stringent law was in force against any dissection of the human body in the State of New York. A person caught in the act was liable to hard labor in the State prison. Besides, the sympathies of the poorer classes were often exercised at the mere thought of such a deed, and one or two occasions were the source of riot, bloodshed, and threatening of the life of any medical man. The ‘Doctors’ Mob’ was brought about by the exhibition of only one limb and much talk.

“Many applications had been made to the legislature, but with no success. Prejudice seemed immovable.

“About this time Dr. Paine was earnestly requested by his colleague professors of the University Medical College to appeal in person to the Legislature, and bring about a repeal of the law that kept down scientific investigation. The following official correspondence, being historical in a medical point of view, is eminently worthy of permanent record, besides explaining many facts not generally known.

‘JUNE 4, 1853.

DR. MARTYN PAINE—DEAR DOCTOR: At the Faculty meeting, yesterday, a resolution was passed unanimously, requesting you, if you can do so conveniently, to go to Albany and endeavor to effect the passage of the anatomical bill. It was the opinion of the Faculty, that if you would make the attempt you would certainly succeed.

Yours truly,

JOHN W. DRAPER, President.’

“To this application Dr. Paine sent an unqualified refusal, stating, among other reasons, the apparently insuperable prejudices against dissections of the human body. In the fall the Doctor received another official letter, of which the following is a copy :

‘UNIVERSITY MEDICAL DEPARTMENT,

November 3, 1853.

MY DEAR SIR : The Faculty, at their last meeting, resolved that it is expedient for them to endeavor to have practical anatomy legalized at the ensuing session of the Legislature ; and they, moreover, directed me to address to you an urgent letter, with a view of inducing you to reconsider your intention of not going to the Legislature this winter ; for they feel that you would with certainty succeed in carrying this important measure, if you will consent to undertake the mission. May I, therefore, hope that you will gratify your colleagues in this particular, and have the pleasure of giving them information to that effect ?

Yours truly,

JOHN W. DRAPER, President.’

“This second and strong appeal produced the desired effect ; and though Dr. Paine saw great personal sacrifices of time and labor under many painful circumstances, and in direct opposition to the popular feeling, he consented, and forthwith entered with zeal upon his new diplomatic mission. The bill met with little delay in the Senate, but was most violently opposed in the House of Assembly, and its ultimate success was chiefly due to the personal explanation made by Dr. Paine during private interviews with those in power, which he kept up with abiding hope till nearly every member of the Legislature became familiar with the nature of the subject. As the passage of the bill required the votes of two-thirds of all those elected to the Legislature, it continued to occupy public attention for three months before Dr. Paine ventured to put the bill to the final test. The requisite number of votes could only be secured by making it a special order for a future day.

“But the end of the labor had not yet come. Four opposing members promised Dr. Paine to withdraw their negatives should it be necessary for the passage of the bill. The Clerk of the House agreed to continue calling the absentees so long as any one might answer to his name, and great interest was exhibited on both sides. A bright prospect seemed to shed its rays, but at the time of final voting a fierce opposition arose, and continuous argument was kept up, with a view to consume the time allotted to this matter. This, however, was brought to a close, and the ‘bone bill,’ as it was maliciously designated, was put to the vote. At the first roll-call there were wanting four affirmative votes, but when the absentees were called two of these responded. A third call brought to light a third affirmative man. And now suspense was painful, for by the temporary absence of this last affirmative the bill might be lost, and the winter's labor become as naught. The 'faithful Clerk' pronounced the names of the absentees once more, when three affirmatives came forward according to promise, and this all-important bill, for the benefit of medical science, became a law by the assistance of two additional and extra votes—67 yeas and 43 nays. In the Senate the final vote was 23 yeas to 3 nays. The principal causes of this formidable opposition were local prejudices and a lobby influence which rejects any advancement for the melioration of mankind, until a very Midas lends his golden touch. Even at this time the Board of Councilmen of the city of New York presented a printed protest, in which they urged 'the Representatives in the Legislature to oppose by every means the passage of any bill legalizing dissection of dead bodies.' Irish and German emigrant societies forwarded strenuous remonstrances, and printed denunciations of the bill were circulated throughout the city of Albany, signed by individuals of certain power. Yet when the bill became a law it met with entire acquiescence."

To accomplish the passage of the bill by either House it became necessary for Professor Paine not only to have personal interviews with all the members both of the Senate and House of Assembly, but so great was the opposition in the House of Assembly that he found it necessary to be present during the entire session of each day for nearly three months, lest the bill should be suddenly sprung upon the house and defeated. In an article which appeared in the New York Courier and Inquirer of March 31, 1854, it is said that—

"After more casualties and accidents than would suffice for the woful ward of Guy's Hospital, the Dissection Bill accomplished a passage in the House of Assembly. It is chiefly owing to the perseverance, and I cannot forbear adding, the impressive appearance of Dr. PAINE, who has watched over it as a physician might over the sick bed of his most responsible patient."

This important but thankless enterprise was undertaken gratuitously by Dr. Paine, and at a great sacrifice of time and of personal convenience and feeling. The bill was most ably advocated in the House of Assembly by the Hon. F. A. Conkling, of New York; the Hon. S. V. R. Mallory, of Ontario ; the Hon. Wm. H. Wood, of Cattaraugus, and the Hon. Mr. Germain, of Erie, whose speeches were published.

The future of the College seems now better assured than ever before. It is hoped that every year will show advances in its methods of instruction and in the arrangement of its curriculum, which will continue it in the position so fairly earned, of one of the promoters of the highest grades of medical science. To this end, the hearty and active co-operation of every alumnus is necessary, and will no doubt be given.
